Great specimen tree for limited space

Here is a very interesting plant that has really caught my eye. The Taxodium distichum 'Peve Minaret' is a dwarf Bald Cypress that grows very slowly, ultimately reaching 10 ft tall and 4-5 ft wide. The dense bright green foliage is outstanding. If you like Bald Cypress, you will love these. The Common Bald Cypress is like a St. Bernard puppy, cute and manageable when young but grows rapidly, overtaking most residential landscapes.

This would be a great specimen or accent piece for a limited area. I have seen one of these in a landscape and it has added 1 ft of growth in the last 5 years. It prefers full sun and moist soil but can tolerate dry upland to wet aquatic conditions. Fall color is a reddish brown and some foliage may persist through the winter.

We even have these with yellow foliage similar to the 'Gold Rush' Dawn Redwood. If you ever get stuck trying to decide on what to plant in a limited space, please consider one of these cultivars.

Thanks, Kevin
