Trees

We Americans are an outdoor-loving people. At every opportunity we turn to natural beauty for relaxation, reflection, and enjoyment. Some find it in their own gardens, in the surrounding countryside; others follow highways to distant forests and parks. But whether at our own doorstep or at a timberline or some mountain peak, the greatest single factor in this quest is trees.

As individuals, trees shelter and beautify our homes, shade our streets and highways, give charm and dignity to our parks, life and character to our landscapes; in tree communities, they form our hillside woodlands, our forests that sweep to the horizon. Just as products of the forest contribute in a thousand and one ways to our day to day life, so do living trees contribute at all seasons of the year to our relaxation and enjoyment.

Here at Christensen's we have the knowledge and Nursery Professionals who will assist and inform you of new and improved tree varieties as well as the ones that we are all knowledgeable of.
